Christmas wont be Christmas without any presents grumbled Jo lying on the rug

Its so dreadful to be poor sighed Meg looking down at her old dress

I dont think its fair for some girls to have plenty of pretty things and other girls nothing at all added little Amy with an injured sniff

Weve got Father and Mother and each other said Beth contentedly from her corner

The four young faces on which the firelight shone brightened at the cheerful words but darkened again as Jo said sadly We havent got Father and shall not have him for a long time She didnt say perhaps never but each silently added it thinking of Father far away where the fighting was

Nobody spoke for a minute then Meg said in an altered tone You know the reason Mother proposed not having any presents this Christmas was because it is going to be a hard winter for everyone and she thinks we ought not to spend money for pleasure when our men are suffering so in the army We cant do much but we can make our little sacrifices and ought to do it gladly But I am afraid I dont and Meg shook her head as she thought regretfully of all the pretty things she wanted

The first place that I can well remember was a large pleasant meadow with a pond of clear water in it Some shady trees leaned over it and rushes and water lilies grew at the deep end Over the hedge on one side we looked into a plowed field and on the other we looked over a gate at our masters house which stood by the roadside at the top of the meadow was a grove of fir trees and at the bottom a running brook overhung by a steep bank

While I was young I lived upon my mothers milk as I could not eat grass In the daytime I ran by her side and at night I lay down close by her When it was hot we used to stand by the pond in the shade of the trees and when it was cold we had a nice warm shed near the grove

As soon as I was old enough to eat grass my mother used to go out to work in the daytime and come back in the evening

There were six young colts in the meadow besides me They were older than I was some were nearly as large as grown up horses I used to run with them and had great fun we used to gallop all together round and round the field as hard as we could go Sometimes we had rather rough play for they would frequently bite and kick as well as gallop

The Selfish Giant

by Oscar Wilde

Every afternoon as they were coming from school the children used to go and play in the Giants garden

It was a large lovely garden with soft green grass Here and there over the grass stood beautiful flowers like stars and there were twelve peach trees that in the spring time broke out into delicate blossoms of pink and pearl and in the autumn bore rich fruit The birds sat on the trees and sang so sweetly that the children used to stop their games in order to listen to them How happy we are here they cried to each other

One day the Giant came back He had been to visit his friend the Cornish ogre and had stayed with him for seven years When he arrived he saw the children playing in the garden

What are you doing here he cried in a very gruff voice and the children ran away

My own garden is my own garden said the Giant Anyone can understand that and I will allow nobody to play in it but myself So he built a high wall all round it and put up a notice board

TRESPASSERS WILL BE PROSECUTED

He was a very selfish giant

The Wind in the Willows

by Kenneth Grahame

As he sat on the grass and looked across the river a dark hole in the bank opposite just above the waters edge caught his eye and dreamily he fell to considering what a nice snug dwelling place it would make for an animal with few wants and a fondness of a riverside residence above flood level remote from noise and dust

As he gazed something bright and small seemed to twinkle down in the heart of it vanished then twinkled once more like a tiny star But it could hardly be a star in such an unlikely situation and it was too glittering and small for a glow worm Then as he looked it winked at him and so declared itself to be an eye and a small face began gradually to grow up round it like a frame round a picture

A brown little face with whiskers A grave round face with the same twinkle in its eye that had first attracted his notice Small neat ears and thick silky hair

It was the Water Rat

Then the two animals stood and regarded each other cautiously

Hullo Mole said the Water Rat

The Jungle Book

By Rudyard Kipling

The bushes rustled a little in the thicket and Father Wolf dropped with his haunches under him ready for his leap Then if you had been watching you would have seen the most wonderful thing in the world The wolf checked in mid-spring He made his bound before he saw what it was he was jumping at and then he tried to stop himself The result was that he shot up straight into the air for four or five feet landing almost where he left ground

Man he snapped A mans cub Look

Directly in front of him holding on by a low branch stood a naked brown baby who could just walk as soft and as dimpled a little atom as ever came to a wolfs cave at night He looked up into Father Wolfs face and laughed

Is that a mans cub said Mother Wolf I have never seen one Bring it here

A wolf accustomed to moving his own cubs can if necessary mouth an egg without breaking it and though Father Wolfs jaws closed right on the childs back not a tooth even scratched the skin as he laid it down among the cubs

How little How naked and how bold said Mother Wolf softly The baby was pushing his way between the cubs to get close to the warm hide Ah He is taking his meal with the others And so this is a mans cub Now was there ever a wolf that could boast of a mans cub among her children

Jack and the Beanstalk

Folk Tale

Once upon a time there was a poor widow who had an only son named Jack and a cow named Milky White. And all they had to live on was the milk the cow gave every morning which they carried to the market and sold. But one morning Milky White gave no milk and they didn't know what to do.

What shall we do? What shall we do? said the widow wringing her hands.

Cheer up, mother. I'll go and get work somewhere, said Jack.

We've tried that before and nobody would take you, said his mother. We must sell Milky White and with the money start a shop.

All right, mother, said Jack. It's market day today and I'll soon sell Milky White and then we'll see what we can do. So he took the cow's halter in his hand and off he started. He hadn't gone far when he met a funny-looking old man.

Oh, you look the proper sort of chap to sell cows, said the man. I wonder if you know how many beans make five.

Two in each hand and one in your mouth, said Jack as sharp as a needle.

And here they are, the very beans themselves, he went on pulling out of his pocket a number of strange-looking beans. I don't mind doing a swap with you. Your cow for these beans, he said.

But why should any wish to kill me said Mowgli

Look at me said Bagheera And Mowgli looked at him steadily between the eyes
The big panther turned his head away in half a minute

That is why he said shifting his paw on the leaves Not even I can look you between the eyes and I was born among men and I love you Little Brother The others they hate you because their eyes cannot meet yours because you are wise because you have pulled out thorns from their feet because you are a man

I did not know these things said Mowgli sullenly and he frowned under his heavy black eyebrows

What is the Law of the Jungle Strike first and then give tongue But be wise said Bagheera leaping up Go down quickly to the mens huts in the valley and take some of the Red Flower which they grow there so that when the time comes you may have even a stronger friend than I or Baloo or those of the pack that love you Get the Red Flower

By Red Flower Bagheera meant fire Only no creature in the jungle will call fire by its proper name Every beast lives in deadly fear of it and invents a hundred ways of describing it

The Red Flower said Mowgli that grows outside their huts in the twilight
I will get some

A Christmas Carol

by Charles Dickens

The Phantom slowly gravely silently approached When it came Scrooge bent down upon his knee for in the very air through which this Spirit moved it seemed to scatter gloom and mystery

It was shrouded in a deep black garment which concealed its head its face its form and left nothing of it visible save one outstretched hand But for this it would have been difficult to detach its figure from the night and separate it from the darkness by which it was surrounded

He felt that it was tall and stately when it came beside him and that its mysterious presence filled him with a solemn dread He knew no more for the Spirit neither spoke nor moved

I am in the presence of the Ghost of Christmas Yet To Come said Scrooge

The Spirit answered not but pointed onward with its hand

You are about to show me shadows of the things that have not happened but will happen in the time before us Scrooge pursued Is that so Spirit

The upper portion of the garment was contracted for an instant in its folds as if the Spirit had inclined its head That was the only answer he received

The Lion and the Mouse

by Aesop

A lion was awakened from sleep by a mouse running over his face.

Rising up angrily, he caught him and was about to kill him when the mouse cried out, “If you would only spare my life I would be sure to repay your kindness!”

The lion laughed and let him go. It happened shortly after this that the lion was caught by some hunters who bound him with ropes to the ground. The mouse recognized his roar and came and gnawed the rope with his teeth and set him free.

The mouse said, “You made fun of the idea of my ever being able to help you. But now you know that it is possible for even a lion to be helped by a mouse.”
