

Census Data: Working for a Living 1

A census is a count of the number of people in a country, city, or town. The United States Census Bureau is responsible for collecting data on American citizens and the economy. The Census Bureau conducts a census every ten year. It conducts annual surveys during those ten-year periods.

ANSWER KEY

Working for a Living 2017
Selected jobs with more than one million full-time, year round workers
Female Workers		Male Workers
Customer service representatives	1,196,513	First-line supervisors of retail sales workers	1,515,173
Accountants and auditors	1,014,827	Janitors and building cleaners	1,188,748
Registered nurses	2,092,489	Retail salespersons	1,039,912
Elementary and middle school teachers	1,933,074	Drivers/sales workers and truck drivers	2,585,286
Secretaries and assistants	2,060,289	Construction laborers	1,242,848

Directions: Look at the data in the table above. Order those jobs from the largest to smallest number of workers and write them in the blank table.

Working for a Living
Selected jobs with more than one million full-time, year round workers
Female Workers		Male Workers
Registered nurses	2,092,489	Drivers/sales workers and truck drivers	2,585,286
Secretaries and assistants	2,060,289	First-line supervisors of retail sales workers	1,515,173
Elementary and middle school teachers	1,933,074	Construction laborers	1,242,848
Customer service representatives	1,196,513	Janitors and building cleaners	1,188,748
Accountants and auditors	1,014,827	Retail salespersons	1,039,912