Election Conditions (Answers)

Conditional sentences can show an if-then, cause-and-effect relationship. If one thing or event happens, then another thing or event can happen. But, the cause must happen for the effect to occur.

Directions: Read the sentence and circle the words"if" and "then." Then, underline the conditions and effects. Lastly, complete the chart below with the correct information and if-then statements.

1. If no person has such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President.
