

Name _____ Date _____ Answer Key

Practice Homophones: Siblings

A homophone is a word that sounds the same as another word, but it is spelled differently and has a different meaning. For example, here and hear are homophones.

Directions: Alicia wrote about her siblings, but mixed up the homophones. Can you go through her article and write the correct form of each homophone on the line?

My Family

I was born into a family with _____ one _____ little sister and won _____ two _____ older brothers. My older brothers were always too competing with each other, and whoever _____ won _____ never let one the other live it down. My little sister was constantly following me around.

I can't count how many times I _____ heard _____ her say _____ to _____ herd two me, "I want _____ to _____ come, _____ too _____." But, _____ no _____ two to know

matter how much my siblings _____ would _____ annoy me when wood

_____ I _____ was a child, I still _____ knew _____ that nothing was eye new more important than family.