Directions: Use these language frames to help create comparison sentences between two nouns.

A. Sentence Frames

1. Dogs and cats both have fur.
2. Dogs and cats are alike because they both are typically pets in a home.
3. Dogs and cats are different because some like to stay outside and some like to stay inside the house.
4. Even though dogs and cats are pets, they differ because they can have different temperaments.
5. While a cat is small, a lot of dogs are big.
6. One difference between dogs and cats is the way they typically like to play with humans.

B. Paragraph Frame

There are similarities and differences between dogs (noun 1) and cats (noun 2). Dogs (noun 1) and cats (noun 2) both have fur. They are alike because their owners usually feed them a few times a day. Even though they have similarities, they differ because they like to play in different ways with their owners. Another difference between dogs (noun 1) and cats (noun 2) is their size. In conclusion, while dogs and cats have many similarities, their sizes and temperaments differ greatly.
