More Wacky Alliteration

Alliteration is a stylistic device writers use by repeating the beginning consonant sound in a group of closely connected words.

Example: Fran found a friend in the forest.

Read the following sentences. Underline the alliteration.

1. The mouse munched on muffins today.
2. Kira and Katie fly kites with a kitten.
3. I wonder where wild wombats live?
4. That mountain is monstrously mighty.
5. Kangaroos and koalas are kind and sweet.

Read each sentence. Decide if the sentence contains alliteration.

Write "Yes" or "No" on the line.

1. I love things that are sweet. No
2. My favorite sport is basketball. No
3. Prancing ponies are playing in the pond. Yes
4. Big beans begin to bow by the bunch. Yes
5. Lucky Lily is a little lost. Yes
