Point of View: Being the New Kid

1. Who is telling the story?

A character named Denise is telling the story.

How do you know?

I know that Denise is telling the story because the story uses words like I, me, we, and us.

The story also shows that the teacher addressed the narrator by calling her Denise. That's how I know the narrator's name is Denise. It is clear that she is a character in the story.

2. What is Denise's opinion about being the new kid?

Denise did not like being the new kid. She felt nervous and worried about making friends.

3. How might Denise's point of view change if she was no longer the new kid in the class?

If Denise was no longer the new kid in the class, she would not feel nervous and worried about entering her classroom. She would know that she had friends to talk to and play with while at school. School days would probably be her favorite days of the week again.
