On a spooky Halloween night, a young boy was walking down an alley. It was so quiet you couldn't hear a thing. All of a sudden, a tall, pale bearded man came out from the darkness. The man's beard was long, white, dirty and thick. The boy was so frightened he stood as still as a board. The man, who was walking right toward him, didn't say a word. As he approached him a black cat screeched in the distance. When the old man got closer to the boy, he stopped right in front of the boy and looked him in the eyes. The man yelled, "Happy Halloween!" The boy screamed as loud as he could. The old man, chuckling, walked into the distance.
