

Altostratus Clouds

are thin veils of clouds that form at mid altitudes between 6,000 and 20,000 feet. Altostratus clouds can hold large amounts of moisture and cover large areas. They are generally gray to grayish-blue and may produce light rainfall.

