

Anchiornis is the first dinosaur that scientists have discovered the true color for. It was mostly black with white feathers on its wings and tail, and a reddish-brown crown. It ended up looking like a prehistoric woodpecker. The scientists discovered the dino's coloration by looking at pigment hidden in fossils.

