

Australia, the Land Down Under

The platypus is one of only 2 mammals that lays eggs instead of giving birth to live young.

It is an excellent swimmer and lives in a burrow in a riverbank not far above the water. It eats freshwater shrimp and yabbies (freshwater crayfish). It spends about 12 hours each day in the water feeding.

The Australian Platypus

