

Platypus
Ornithorhynchus anatinus

They are egg-laying mammals, called monotremes.
The males have small spikes that are poisonous.
Webbed feet make them great swimmers.
They were once thought to be a hoax animal.

