

There once was a prince who wanted a princess, but was having a hard time finding one. One night, a young lady claiming to be a princess came to his door, asking to stay the night to escape the storm outside. To test her, the prince's mother placed a pea underneath twenty mattresses for the girl to sleep on. In the morning, the girl complained of a bad night's sleep. Only a real princess could have such delicate skin!