

Mediate an Argument!

Uh-oh! Congress is divided again, and they need your help to find a solution. What's the big argument today? Half of Congress thinks the national dessert should be cake, but the other wants it to be pie.

Think about which dessert you like better. As president, will you fully support the side of Congress that agrees with you or will you try to make a compromise? Remember that if you only try to make the pro-cake Congress members happy, the pro-pie Congress members won't be very happy, and vice versa.

The newspapers are anxiously waiting to report what the national dessert will be. How will you help Congress reach a solution?
