

Tsintaosaurus

The Tsintaosaurus (ching-DOW-o-Saw-rus) was a hadrosaur that had a characteristic 'duck bill' snout and a battery of powerful teeth which it used to chew vegetation. It usually walked on all fours, but could stand up on its hind legs to scout for predators and flee when it spotted one.