

FLOWER POWER

Flora loves flowers, but she's having a hard time remembering what's what. Can you help her label the parts of the flower? Use the clues below.

- A stamen has two parts: long, skinny filaments and rounded anthers.
- The pistil has three parts: the stigma, the style, and the ovary.
- The sticky stigma traps pollen at the top of the style.
- The style leads down to the ovary.
- The ovary is where the seeds develop.

stamen
pistil
stigma
style
ovary

