

Name _____ Date _____

Practice Homophones: Siblings

A homophone is a word that sounds the same as another word, but it is spelled differently and has a different meaning. For example, here and hear are homophones.

Directions: Alicia wrote about her siblings, but mixed up the homophones. Can you go through her article and write the correct form of each homophone on the line?

My Family

I was born into a family with _____ little sister and _____ older brothers. My older brothers were always _____ competing with each other, and whoever _____ never let the other live it down. My little sister was constantly following me around.
I can't count how many times I _____ her say _____ me, "I want _____ come, _____." But, _____ matter how much my siblings _____ annoy me when _____ was a child, I still _____ that nothing was more important than family.