Identify Misplaced and Dangling Modifiers #2

A modifier is a word or group of words that describes another word or phrase in the same sentence. A misplaced modifier appears to describe the wrong part of the sentence, usually because it's too far away from the word or phrase it should be modifying.

Example: Mack lagged behind the tour guide, weary from a long day of sightseeing in Savannah.

→ This wrongly suggests that Mack's tour guide, rather than Mack, was exhausted from sightseeing.

A dangling modifier appears to describe the wrong part of the sentence because the word or phrase it should be modifying is missing from the sentence altogether.

Example: Walking into the science lab, the test tubes and beakers were on the table.

→ This wrongly suggests that the test tubes and beakers were walking into the lab.

Underline the misplaced or dangling modifier in each sentence.

- 1 Having grown in popularity over the last few years, many Americans have picked up the hobbies of baking and reading.
- 2 The costumed runners at the Kindness in Action 5k were encouraged by event volunteers and sponsors in cars decked out in brightly colored clothing.
- 3 In World War II, a cat nicknamed "Unsinkable Sam" survived the sinking of three naval ships, whose real name was Oscar.
- 4 Eagerly awaiting takeoff, Lexi's bag was tucked underneath the seat in front of her.
- 5 To avoid poking the horse with their sword, the tradition of mounting a horse from the left side dates to a time when riders wore a sword on their left.
- 6 The ferry boat full of uneasy passengers swayed in the choppy water trying not to feel sick along the way.
- 7 During Mrs. Harding's geography review session, we discussed the Indian Ocean's location and weather patterns in her windowless classroom.
- 8 My cousin, Michael, gifted me a souvenir from his summer vacation in Italy that was a replica of the Colosseum.
- 9 The third largest living land animal, I quietly observed the hippopotamus sleeping half-submerged in the shallow water of the Nile River.
- 10 Alayah was ecstatic when her mom handed her a new phone case with an ear-to-ear grin.
