

IDENTIFYING PREPOSITIONAL PHRASES

A preposition is a word that comes before a noun or pronoun. That noun or pronoun is called the object of the preposition. A preposition connects the object to the rest of the sentence. A prepositional phrase consists of a preposition, its object, and any words that modify the object.

Remember that a preposition is a part of speech that shows a spatial, temporal, or logical relationship between two things. Some common prepositions include about, after, before, between, during, except, for, from, in, since, through, until, with, and without.
