

Larry Shinoda

Asian-Pacific American
Heritage Month

Lawrence Kiyoshi (Larry) Shinoda, was born in Los Angeles and went on to be a famous and influential car designer. Early on, he worked at General Motors, where he designed the second and third generation Chevrolet Corvette Sting Ray. After that, he worked at Ford, and designed the Boss 302 Mustang. After that, he opened his own design company and contracted for various automotive companies.

