Mumbai

Mumbai, also known as Bombay (official name until 1995), is the richest city in India and is the country's commercial and entertainment capital. It has the highest GDP among any city in South, West, or Central Asia.

Among the many important landmarks in Mumbai, the Haji Ali Dargah was built over the tomb of the saint Haji Ali. It is situated 500 yards into the sea and can only be reached at low tide. During high tide, the mosque appears to be floating in the sea, as the causeway leading to it is submerged. It is believed that on Thursdays and Fridays, the shrine is visited by at least 40,000 pilgrims regardless of faith and religion to get the blessings of the legendary saint.
