

RUSSIA

Moscow

St. Petersburg

Sochi

Vladivostok

Tynda

Irkutsk

Magadan

Moscow, the capital of Russia, is an enormous metropolitan city and a center of economics, culture, and transportation.

St. Petersburg was changed to Petrograd in 1914, Leningrad in 1924, and renamed St. Petersburg in 1991.

Sochi is known for its athletic facilities, tropical weather, and beaches.

Vladivostok has been ruled by Asian dynasties in the past. It is popular for its naval base and fishing trade.

Tynda is a town located along a river and is an important railroad intersection.

Irkutsk is a large city in Siberia.

Magadan is an isolated town outside of the Kolyma region.