

Museum Display

Imagine you're helping create a brand new museum that will celebrate our country's greatest heroes. The museum is almost ready to open, but there is still one display stand that needs to be filled. What would you choose to display? Pick one of your favorite American heroes and select an artifact, or object, that you think will represent that hero well - the object can be anything from a hero's old t-shirt to his personal journal.

Draw the artifact below and don't forget to fill out the display card at the bottom. The display card will let museum visitors know what the artifact is and why it is important.

The form is a template for a museum display stand. It features a large central rectangular area for drawing an artifact. Below this is a smaller rectangular area, shaded gray, intended for a title or label. At the bottom is a larger rectangular area with four horizontal lines for writing a description. The top and bottom sections of the stand are also shaded gray.
