

Other Ways to Say It: Common Adverbs #2

When you use strong adverbs, your writing becomes more descriptive and impactful. Strong adverbs are specific and vivid, and they can evoke emotion from your reader. Look at the bolded adverb in this example.

⊘ Mina looked sadly out the window at the stormy skies.

The sentence works as written, but another adverb might be more accurate or effective for helping readers envision precisely what you want to convey. To create a more expressive, specific sentence for your reader, consider replacing the adverb with something else. Look at these alternatives.

- ✓ Mina looked glumly out the window at the stormy skies.
- ✓ Mina looked bitterly out the window at the stormy skies.
- ✓ Mina looked wistfully out the window at the stormy skies.
- ✓ Mina looked dejectedly out the window at the stormy skies.
- ✓ Mina looked cheerlessly out the window at the stormy skies.

These adverbs better describe Mina's emotional state and the way in which she was looking out the window.

Directions: Look at the adverbs below. Then, write down at least five more descriptive ways to say them. Use reference materials, such as a dictionary or a thesaurus, to help you.
