

Julia was trying to write a sports article, but kept confusing what happened at the baseball game yesterday with what's going on at the baseball game right now, and what might happen at the game tomorrow. Help her out by sorting the sentences in her article into past, present, and future.

Directions: Cut out the sentences at the bottom of the paper. Glue them into the column they belong in: past, present, and future.

PAST	PRESENT	FUTURE
The Padres won the game with a final score of 5-0.

The best hitter on the team is coming up to bat.

The pinch runner tore his calf muscle yesterday when he ran around third base.

The game will start at 6:00 p.m.

Experts say that Brian Thompson will hit four home runs against the Orioles tomorrow.

Steve Pages is rounding third, and it looks like he might make it to home!
