

The tin soldier was lost in the outside world.
Two mischievous boys found him, and decided to send him down the river in a paper boat. But the tin soldier stayed steadfast on his one leg, and was not scared.

The river tumbled and gurgled along, and the tin soldier remained steadfast even as he approached a giant waterfall. Suddenly, his boat came apart and he was swallowed by a giant fish!

The tin soldier was surprised when light suddenly appeared. The fish had been caught, and was going to be cooked for dinner. The cook was happy to see him. She knew a little boy who had lost his tin soldier.

To his delight, the tin soldier was back in his old play room!
He was placed next to the pretty ballerina so he could protect the castle. He had found his way home at last.
