THE WAYS WE COMMUNICATE

Can you count the amount of times you've talked to someone on the phone today? Or how much time you spent on the computer? Did you know that even without saying anything, you are actually sharing ideas with other people about how you feel? Whenever you share news, messages, or information with others, you are actually communicating with them. Communication is an important part of every day life.

Communicating ideas helps us solve problems. There are many ways we communicate. Phones allow us to talk to people from far away, the internet is a wonderful tool for writing news and stories. Even animals communicate by making noises or moving in different ways. Movies, television, news, books, music, and art are a few of the many ways people communicate with each other every day.

Under each example below, write out how people use each object for communication.

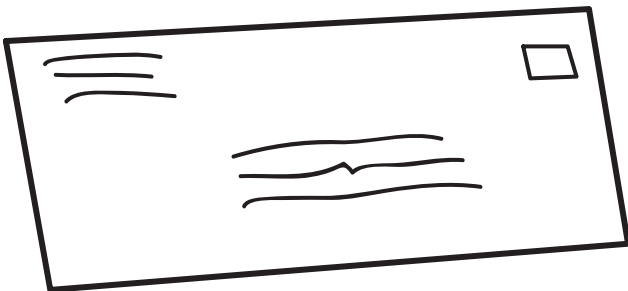

1. Telephone

2. Gift

3. Letters

4. Whistle
