One sunny Saturday, Donovan decided to visit his cousin in a nearby town. "You're old enough now to take the train on your own," Donovan's mother told him. "Just be careful, and be sure to get off at Mountainview Station."

Donovan looked out the train window just as it pulled away from the station. He realized too late that he'd missed his stop! He glanced around and noticed a friendly-looking train conductor walking up the aisle.

As Donovan stepped off the train at Mountainview Station, he breathed a sigh of relief. "Next time," he told himself, "I'll bring my own map!"
